SHIM SHAM SHIMMY

January 7, 1907 – April 5, 2004

Leonard Reed was an American tap dancer, co-creator with his partner, Willie Bryant, of the famous Shim Sham Shimmy tap dance routine.

The Shim Sham Shimmy, or just Shim Sham, is a routine that's regarded as tap dance's national anthem. At the end of many performances, all of the musicians, singers, and dancers would get together on stage and do one last routine: the Shim Sham Shimmy. Tap dancers would perform technical variations, while singers and musicians would shuffle along as they were able.

The Leonard Reed Shim Shams:

- The original Shim Sham from 1927, a 32-bar chorus composed of four steps and a break
- The Freeze Chorus, circa 1930s, the original Shim Sham without the breaks
- The Joe Louis Shuffle Shim Sham, 1948, a tap-swing dance 32-bar chorus number that Leonard Reed performed with the World Heavyweight Boxing champ Joe Louis
- The Shim Sham II, 1994, a 32-bar chorus dance based on the original Shim Sham
- The Revenge of the Shim Sham, 2002, a 32-bar chorus dance, Leonard Reed's final Shim Sham, which builds upon his original four National Tap Dance Day falls on May 25 every year, and was signed into USA law on November 8, 1989. National Tap Dance Day is celebrated in many different ways around the world, but most dancers incorporate the Shim Sham Shimmy routine because it's a classic dance that's been shared for nearly 100 years!

This specific date was chosen in honor of a famous tap dancer, actor, and singer named Bill "Bojangles" Robinson (May 25, 1878 – November 25, 1949). He's famous for dancing with Shirley Temple in a series of films during the 1930s.
